Eight Little Words

How God led a Mennonite farm boy
to a remote town in Nepal

Otho H. Horst
as told to
Fern Horst & Alyssa Reitz

At 19 Otho Horst was living the only life he had ever known or dreamed of: being a farmer. Then, early one July morning a heartbreaking tragedy shook his idyllic world, and in the middle of a cow pasture God spoke eight simple words to his heart that forever changed his outlook and the course of his life.

Eight Little Words is the story of the Lord taking a young man from a Mennonite farming community in Maryland to a remote town in Nepal. Through joining the Pax Service after WWII, Otho first went to Germany to help rebuild after the war, and then to Tansen, Nepal, where he helped build a hospital for three adventurous years. Otho's life would never be the same again.

Ultimately, this book is an account of what God can do with a person fully committed to following Him.

About the Authors

Otho Horst began life as a farmer, but God had other plans. Through his life of missionary work and pastoring, Otho has lived a fulfilling life serving Jesus and encouraging others to live for Him. Otho is a natural story teller. Whether from over the pulpit or around the dinner table, his children, grandchildren, and many others have enjoyed listening to his stories from a lifetime of service in various places around the globe. Some of his favorite stories are from his time in Pax Service in the 1950s.

With a desire to preserve these stories and pass them on to others, Otho's daughter Fern Horst and granddaughter Alyssa Reitz committed to compiling and publishing them. This book is a result of hours of listening to Otho's stories and reading his diaries and letters, long days of writing interspersed with laughter, and — most of all — a God Who has a purpose for each person He creates.
